

Uploading a Video to Google Drive

Last update: 5 December 2012

From your video editing screen, tap this button to get back to the main iMovie screen. This is where you can manage and export all your projects.

Tap the “Arrow” icon at the bottom of the screen to view your export options.

Choose “Camera Roll”. Choose export size “Large”.

If you don't already have the Google Drive app, you'll need to download it. Then, log into the app using your U of M Internet ID and password.

Then, tap the “+” icon and choose “Upload Photo or Video”.

Navigate to your Camera Roll, and find and tap on the video you just exported. Tap “Use”, and the video will upload.

To find your newly-uploaded video, tap on “Uploads” in the left-hand sidebar. Note: The video will be called something like “Video DATE TIME.mov”—not the name you gave it within your iMovie app. (You can rename it within the Google Drive app.)

Tap the arrow to the right of your video to get to the video Details view.

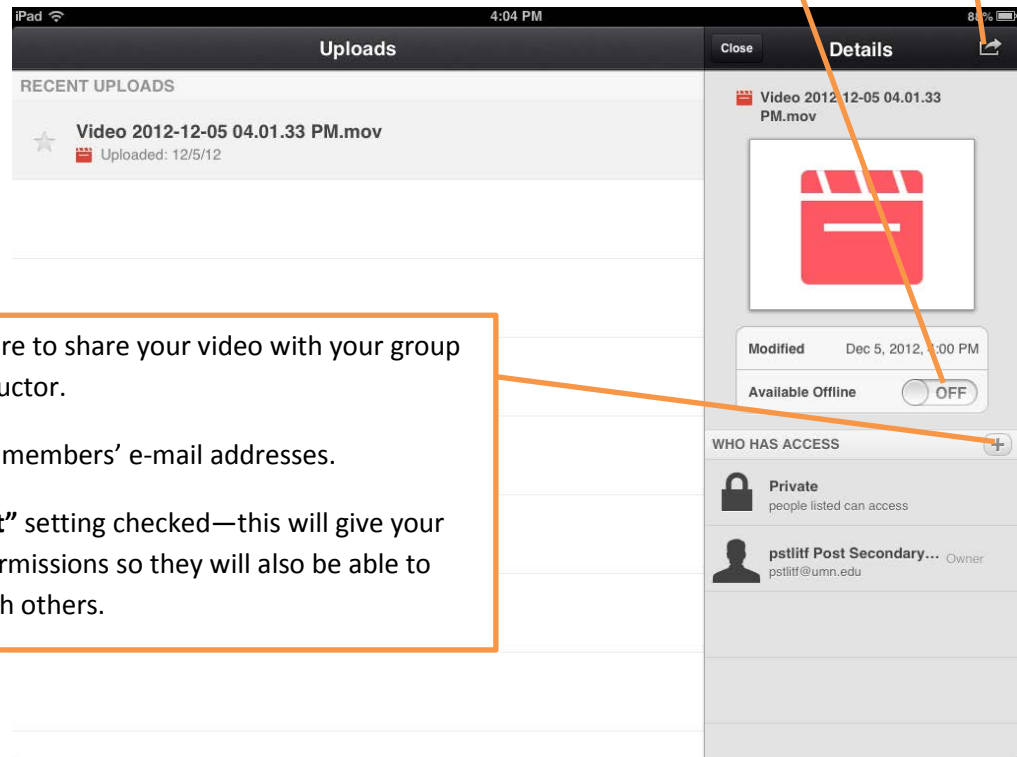

Turn this “On” to be able to view your video even when you’re offline. This can be handy for making in-class presentations, or when you’re not sure if you’ll have WiFi Internet access. (Note: Your video will still remain in Google Drive regardless of whether you have this turned “On” or “Off”. This just allows you to save a copy of your video locally to your iPad for offline viewing.)

Tap here to rename your video.

Tap the “+” icon here to share your video with your group members and instructor.

Type in your group members’ e-mail addresses.

Leave the “Can Edit” setting checked—this will give your group members permissions so they will also be able to share the video with others.

Get a public link to your video to share with the whole class

Now that you have your video uploaded and shared on Google Drive, you will be able to access it through the Google Drive mobile app anytime. You can also access it on a laptop/desktop computer. To open up your Google Drive on a laptop/desktop computer: log into your U of M e-mail account, then click on “Drive” along the Google Apps menu bar at the top of the browser window.

From within your Google Drive on a laptop/desktop, locate your video among your list of files and click on its name. Once your video is open, click on the blue  button in the upper right-hand corner of the screen.

Under “Who has access” click “Change...”, and change the sharing setting to “People at University of Minnesota with the link”. Click “Save”.

Then, look along the top of the Sharing Settings box and find the “Link to share”. Copy this link, and you can post it to a Moodle forum, send it in an e-mail, or share it with people at the U of M whom you’d like to view your video!
